The Wants of Humanity

Are Reflected on this Page.

Every one knows that on the average "Want Page" of the average news-paper there are to be found a number of Help Wanted Ads and Real Estate Ads and other things, but did YOU ever stop to consider that nearly everything that mankind needs is advertised on this page of The Washington Heraid? The "Lost and Found" heading shows the good and bad luck of individuals, and at times indicates an extreme anxiety to recover some treasured article. The Help and Situation Wanted Ads show the needs of employers and, to an extent, the state of business or the pressing need of some individual for employment that he or she, perhaps, may support a family. The Real Estate Ads touch on the home life of the nation, showing how builders endeavor to include every-thing within walls which will make the home more attractive to every member of the family and add to the comfort of humanity in general. They also indicate the value of thrift and industry in the excess of the For Sale over the For Rent Ads, and the inborn desire of man to own his own home. The "For Rent-Rooms" indicate somewhat the same with that class who are away from home, and also indicate the conditions in this city in regard to caring for strangers. At the present time the ads under "Inaugural Information" reflect those desires which are shared by nearly every one in the entire country. The business ads speak for themselves, indicating forcibly what the business man wants and proclaiming without fear the merits of his proposition to the public. The Personal and Miscellaneous Ads vary from day to day, reflecting in varying degree every

So the record could be continued and individual ads reviewed. If we but stop to think we recognize the fact that the "wants" of humanity are all The baby crying for a toy feels the desire more strongly perhaps than the father who is trying to obtain a home from a millionaire, and the effect on the father is perhaps greater than is the effect on the man of

There is one feature of the "Want Ad" business that is NOT to be found on this page of The Washington Herald. There is no display here of the business of those people whose great desire is to take advantage of the credulity

This is a good, clean sheet, which benefits you by its reading, and one in which every advertiser has an equal show. Although The Washington Herald has by far the largest morning circulation in Washington, its ads bring results equally as well because of the QUALITY of its circulation. The rates are 1 cent per word each insecrtion-and it's worth it. Special rates are offered for three and seven time ads and on monthly contracts.
